WASHINGTON, April 16.—Administration leaders today mapped a program for enactment of President Roosevelt's $4,000,000,000 relief and recovery program, and agreed to scrap certain legislation and drive for adjournment of congress by May 15.

The relief and recovery program, including huge WPA and Public Works programs, will be started on its way with hearings before a house appropriations subcommittee on next Wednesday.

In reply to the question, "What kind of plug tobacco did you chew 40 or 50 years ago?" John Carpenter, 207 South Crawford avenue, answers, "Dog-leg." Mr. Carpenter, 88 years young, wonders how many people can remember this type of tobacco which was sold 75 years ago.

Way out East Washington street, in the yard of a home, there are two large Magnolia trees in full bloom, which is a pretty sight. On closer examination it can be seen that the cold weather, with ice and snow of a little more than a week ago, had destroyed some of the buds.

"Old Glory" flying from the staff above the dancing pavilion at Cascade Park is in a tattered condition. It has been through many a battle with wind, rain and storms. No doubt we shall see a new flag floating in the breeze from that location by Memorial Day.

New Castle Is Ready For Easter Observance

Reading the sacrificial days of Lent and the dark three days of agony, Easter Sunday, the day of hope and promise comes tomorrow. In every church the beautiful story of the Resurrection will be observed in song and story, in pageantry and splendor, the shrieks of sorrow and gloom cast aside as the world garbs itself in the colors of the season.

Not a church but will hold special services marking the day. In the Catholic churches the masses will be impressive. In the Protestant churches the morning services at 11 will carry the message of the day and in the afternoon, weather permitting, the annual Easter display of finery will be seen on the streets.

During the night the elusive Easter bunny will be dropping

Soviet Russia Closes Borders

Closing Of Siberian Borders
May Scale Reinforcement Of Armies

POSSIBLE OUTBREAK WITH JAPAN, RUMOR

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, April 16.—Soviet Russia has suddenly closed its Siberian borders to cloak large scale reinforcement of its eastern armies and air force against a possible outbreak of war with Japan. It was reported in informed diplomatic quarters here today.

The Siberian borders were closed April 15 with an announcement they might open April 29, but that the closing order "might be extended indefinitely." Travel on the trans-Siberian railroad has been suspended and cable lines from China to western Russia have been shut down.

Through private diplomatic channels, despite a rigid censorship clamped down by the Soviets, word reached Washington that Russia is "getting set" to take advantage of recent disastrous defeats suffered by the Japanese in China.

The Japanese armies have become so confused, over-extended and weakened in their Chinese warfare that they would be certain to sustain defeat if a well-equipped modern Soviet army moved out of Siberia to smash them from the rear, stated the quarters concerned.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The first round in the administration's battle for prosperity was completed today as the SEC offered to assist small business in floating stocks and bonds and the Federal Reserve Board inflated bank reserves by $750,000,000.

Considerable importance attaches to the SEC's removal of certain legal and financial obstacles that have prevented small commercial enterprises from obtaining much-needed capital by means of securities issues.

Both the commission and the Federal Reserve Board carried out within 24 hours the recommendations contained in President Roosevelt's new recovery message, and climaxed the treasury's action in destituting its $1,400,000,000 gold hoard Thursday.

(Copyright, 1938, By International

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Regional planning legislation today was shelved for the duration of this congress, it was learned on high authority.

Although demanded by President Roosevelt as part of his four-point program, presented to the special session last November, the controversial nature of the legislation and the unyielding opposition of Senator Norris (R) of Nebraska to a compromise bill contributed to the decision.

A regional planning bill stripped of its power provisions with the consent of Mr. Roosevelt, was approved by the House, and labor's committee and placed on the calendar a month ago. No move has been made to bring it up since.

Decision to abandon attempts to pass it was reached when word came from the senate that Norris would insist on his far-reaching and more drastic measure creating seven "little TVA's."

Webster says a balm is a Spanish dance with castanets. He also says it is a short jacket with or without sleeves. Washington Irving wrote about a pretty girl who looked nice "in a balm with a dragon" and nobody ever was able to figure out

Crime—Confesses

(International News Service)
YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 16.—A "strange charge to kill" led him to slay three members of the Baumeister family on their farm near North Lima last January 4, Norman Smith, 19, of Cambridge, Pa., was quoted as explaining today by Sheriff Ralph Elser of Mahoning County.

Smith is held in the county jail here on murder charges. He was apprehended at Edinboro, Pa., yesterday in a tip from Mrs. Lou Anderson, of Austin, Pa. Smith has admitted killing Mr. and Mrs. Henry Baumeister and Theodore Baumeister, father of Henry, according to Sheriff Elser.

In his statement, Elser said young Smith told of traveling through California after the killings. He said, according to Elser, that "dumb cops" jailed him in many cities but none connected him with the Baumeister killings.

"I'm glad it's over," Elser quoted the youth. "I'm glad I was caught before I could do something else."

Elser revealed there are several discrepancies in Smith's statement. At first he said he was "drunk" when the Baumeisters were killed and later he said the killings occurred in an argument over wages. He admitted taking $25 from Baumeister's pockets, according to Elser.

Smith worked on the Baumeister farm three weeks prior to the killings.

PARIS, April 16.—Sixty-down strikers evacuated 40 French factories, including the large Renault plant, today as Premier Edouard Daladier brought to an end the strike of 158,000 metal and industrial workers that seriously impeded France's rearmament program.

It was believed all plants occupied by "sit-downers" would be cleared by tonight as a result of acceptance by employers of peace proposals put forward by the government.

Earlier peace was restored for the Easter week and when the government sternly warned both employers and unions of the consequences of continued social strife. The government ordered resumption of work Tuesday.

Indicative of the eased situation, Premier Daladier and his finance minister, Georges Bonnet, accepted an invitation tendered by British Ambassador Sir Eric Phipps to visit London on April 24 for a conference with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain.

Police Believe Man Held May

For Other Crimes

(International News Service)
LOS ANGELES, April 16.—Pro-nounced by examining physicians as a sex maniac, but sane, Charles McLachlan, 35-year-old house painter and confessed slayer of seven-year-old Jesus Moreno was to be quizzed today to determine whether he may be responsible for sex crimes against other young children in Downey.

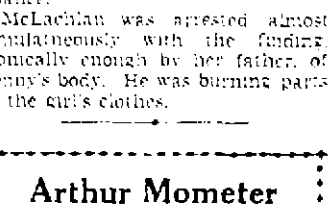

Deputy sheriffs said that there are two unsolved crimes against children which took place within the last six months.

Held in the county jail here, booked on suspicion of murder, McLachlan, known in his neighborhood as the "Toby Bum," freely confessed to the murder of the little Mexican child whom he had lured into his one-room shack Thursday.

As he confessed the crime to sheriff Eugene Escalante, near neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. John Moreno, parents of the slain child, expressed open regret that they did not learn McLachlan when they had the chance.

McLachlan was arrested almost immediately with the finding, ironically enough by her father, of Jesus's body. He was burning parts of the girl's clothes.

Forest Fires Burn 2000 Acres

State Forests Hit By Fires

Worst Fires Develop In Branchdale Section In Schuylkill County

C. C. C. WORKERS AID IN HALTING FLAMES

Pennsylvania's first crop of summer forest fires left more than 2,000 acres of blackened timber and brush lands today. The worst fires swept through the Branchdale section in Schuylkill county. In that area state foresters and volunteers battled flames over an area of more than 500 acres in an effort to save structures in the path of the crackling conflagration. The forest fire licked its way into sections of Schuylkill, Carbon, Lehigh, Berks and Luzerne counties, the area known as the Weiser district. Underbrush and leaves, dried thoroughly by the recent warm weather, kindled the forest fires. It was reported, however, fire-fighters turned back the flames before they reached residences.

Volunteers Battle Blaze
CCC workers and volunteers fought flames in the one mile ridge area near Newport before the blaze was brought under control after sweeping more than 100 acres of timberland. The more than three score of CCC workers were summoned from New Germantown after Newport firemen were unsuccessful in setting up a back-fire.

Edward T. Rudy, state forest inspector, directed the efforts of more than 100 fire-fighters in the Peter's mountain sector near Specqueville, where a large area of timberland was laid waste. A number of summer cottages were threatened for a time. Earlier in the day fire whipped over 350 acres in the vicinity of Swatara Gap in Fishing Creek Valley.

Clouded skies and promises of showers were expected to bring a measure of relief from the forest fire dangers in a number of areas today.

aided will follow with evidence designed to support the request for $15,000,000 for destitute farmers and rural rehabilitation.

The public works program, which involves $450,000,000 in direct expenditures and loans and grants to municipalities, will be supported by secretary of interior Ickes the following week.

In spite of criticism of the "pump priming" program, administration leaders were confident that congress will approve it. A "progressive" drive to increase WPA funds appeared likely.

Program In House

With business piling up in the house, leaders of that body agreed:

1. To attempt to pass the "pump priming" program the first week in May.
2. To order a vote in the house, if necessary, on the issue of the undistributed profits tax as a means of paying the way for a conference agreement on the $5,000,000,000 tax bill.
3. To pass a flood control authorization program, ranging from $300,000,000 to $500,000,000.
4. To place wage-hours legislation on the problematical list, with passage doubtful despite an administration and labor drive for it.
5. To allow regional planning legislation to die.

Ready For Early Action

Both senate and house were ready to take early action to carry out part of the Roosevelt program. The senate is expected to pass next week a bill providing the civilian conservation corps with an additional $50,000,000, while the house planned to act on a bill to provide $100,000,000 to highway funds to the agricultural supply bill on Tuesday.

The senate was expected to pass the huge naval authorization bill, which the house already has approved. Senate and house banking committees were expected to report amendments to the housing act designed to make possible the Roosevelt plan of spending $300,000,000 on projects.

Strong Opposition

The "pump priming" program faced strong opposition from a bipartisan coalition. Administration leaders, however, pointed out that congress has never refused to grant administration desires for relief and recovery programs. They also banked upon the fact that this is an election year.

While the house labor committee has agreed to a wage-hours bill, the proposal for minimum wages from 25 to 40 cents an hour and hours from 44 to 40 a week, aroused such deep-seated southern opposition that final enactment appeared remote.

Even if the house passes the bill, opponents predicted that it will die in conference.

Fishing along Hickory creek this morning Morton Reynolds of R. F. D. No. 2, set his limit of trout in an hour and a half. His catch included a 12 incher. The smallest fish measured seven inches.

County Game Warden Frank L. Coen, who roamed the favorite fishing streams of the county in the moonlight long before the most ardent anglers arrived to toss in their lines at the stroke of 12 Thursday night, said Walter C. Stone, 410 North Liberty street, was the first successful fisherman he ran across. Stone pulled a 15-inch rainbow trout out of Hickory creek, at Vance's bridge, at 1:15 a. m. Friday.

The Little Neshaunock, Coen reported, "was the hardest fished and Hickory creek was next." He said he never saw so many fishermen out on the first day, and that it looked like one of the northern hunting centers on the opening day.

The fact that it was Good Friday and a holiday for many probably accounted for the army along the banks.

Dear Pa News:

There has been much concern about birds that have visited in many back yards the past few weeks. Requests have come to me for information on these birds that wear the gray-white vest and the outer rail feathers that show white when the birds are in flight. These birds are slate colored snow birds or juncos that are not common in warm latitudes but are dwellers of the cold. These birds come to these parts about the first of October, and start to feed upon the wild seeds of the fields, until deep snows force them to seek help from man, becoming a timid visitor when hunger forces them into familiarity. The appearance of these birds at this time is caused by lack of wild seeds, coming in from the open fields into the domestic domain in quest of food. But soon they will be off to the north, where they will woo and nest to bring forth young. If you have any of these bird visitors in your back yard listen and you may hear a love song, sung only at this time of year. Friday morning R. W. Simpson, 419 Park avenue, told me of a flock of these birds feeding in his yard.

MARCH TO SEA IS COMPLETED BY INSURGENTS

Barcelona with the southern government port of Valencia. Meanwhile, government troops fled to the north and south, hotly pursued by insurgent troops under General Miguel Aranda.

Married but little by the fighting that preceded its fall, Vinaroz streets were clean and shops were closed, while the town was given over to celebrations of the smashing insurgent victory.

Shortly after its capture, a captain telephoned the government at Barcelona and announced the fall of the vital key town.

"Very well," came the cryptic answer.

Wires Are Cut
Almost immediately after these words were spoken the wires to the government capital were cut.

Occupation of Vinaroz, insurgent advisers said, was virtually uncontested by the government troops.

As soon as the insurgent soldiers entered, they rushed pell-mell for the sea and bathed themselves after the long, rapid drive to the east.

Gen. Alonso dipped his hands in the water and made a sign of the cross.

Meanwhile, at Madrid, Gen. Jose Maja, supreme government commander there, announced he had been empowered by Barcelona to govern central Spain separately from the Catalan sector.

Barcelona Isolated

This move was made necessary by the insurgent dismemberment of government-held territory, which isolated Barcelona from land communications with Madrid and Valencia.

While the Insurgents threatened their way along the fertile countryside around Vinaroz, Benicarlo and Palsco, the government air force also became active.

Thirty government planes flew over Vinaroz after the Insurgents entered the town, but two were shot down by anti-aircraft guns. The others were forced to fly out to sea.

Refuses To Give Up

At Madrid, Gen. Maja refused to give up hope. He issued a statement saying:

"Iron discipline and determination will win. It will triumph despite our momentary adversities."

But even as he spoke, insurgent attacks continued in Catalonia. The bridgehead at Balaguer was assaulted by one insurgent column while another, in a fierce counter-maneuver, flooded the countryside south of Valforga to prevent a government advance.

Caution Issued

With the Insurgent Army, Vinaroz, Spain, April 16.—While combined insurgent forces of Spaniards and Italians quickly spread out fanwise over more than 18 miles of the Mediterranean coast today, insurgent field headquarters issued this caution:

Although the government has been "heavily inconvenienced" by severance of communications between north and south, "immediate collapse of resistance is not anticipated."

Barcelona, it was believed, will now make another urgent appeal for the foreign aid which is essential for a protracted campaign.

Another danger, it was revealed, lies in the fact that the center of the insurgent line around Balaguer, where some of the heaviest fighting of the war has been going on, was weakened in a shift of troops for the drive to the sea.

The Anglo-Italian accord consists of a series of documents, two of them taking the form of agreements and the remainder being letters exchanged between the two governments.

Eventual withdrawal of Italian troops from Spain is provided for as well as an agreement on Palestine and Arabia. Italy recognizes British sovereignty over Aden on the Red Sea and the separate spheres of influence of the two nations clearly outlined.

British recognition of Ethiopia also is involved with the frontiers of the new Italian empire in Africa, at present vague, carefully defined. The documents reaffirm the interests of England and Italy in the Mediterranean with both nations guaranteeing freedom of communications through that sea. Italy forswears any fortifications race in the Mediterranean and the Red Sea and promises to establish a normal figure for its Libyan garrison.

ings. He was employed on the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Chalmers at Edinburg when he was apprehended.

"Urge To Kill"

Smith attributed the killings to an "urge to kill" which manifested itself in a series of quarrels over wages, according to Elser. The sheriff quoted the youth as follows:

"I hid in the barn and when Mrs. Baumeister entered I hit her over the head with a piece of iron pipe. As she fell, I hit her again and again. I drew a knife and slashed her and then hid the body under some cornstalks."

A few minutes later Theodore Baumeister entered the barn and I hid the same to him. I hit him and slashed him and then hid the body."

"After that, I went to the house and waited 15 minutes for Henry to return home. When he entered the kitchen, I pointed the shotgun at him and the blast hit him in the stomach—but he didn't fall right away. I grabbed the barrel of the gun and hit him over the head several times."

Praises Sheriff

Although Smith said "cops are dumb" he also praised the sheriff and his men for the manner in which they apprehended him. The youth told of coming here in the Baumeister automobile which he later abandoned at Fort Wayne, Ind., when the church was burned out. He hitch-hiked his way and rode freight trains to Indo, Cal., the sheriff said, where he worked on a ranch and stayed for a while with a Blackfoot Indian at Thompson's Falls, Mont. Later, Elser said, he stopped in Milwaukee and then returned to Akron and took a job with the Chalmers a few days ago. Smith was raised on a farm in Green township, Indiana county, Pa.

MAXINE CRAIG BRIDE OF JAMES F. STAATS

Of interest locally is the wedding ceremony which took place at 11 o'clock this morning in Clintonville, Pa., in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Craig, when their daughter, Maxine, became the bride of James F. Staats, son of Mrs. Ella Staats of 125 East street, this city.

The couple were united in marriage by the Rev. Temple, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Clintonville, in the presence of the immediate families of the young couple and a few invited friends. The single ring service was used. Attired in a smart Navy blue ensemble, with matching accessories, the bride was most attractive. She wore a shoulder corsage of gardenias. Mr. and Mrs. Martin Andrews of Mt. Jackson, were their only attendants. The latter also was attired in a Navy ensemble, with accompaniments to match, and her shoulder bouquet was of gardenias.

Supplementing the ceremony, a wedding dinner was served in the bride's home, the nuptial motif being used in the table appointments. An all white theme predominated, and centering the bridal table, where places marked for fourteen, was a tiered wedding cake, surmounted with a bride and groom in miniature.

For the occasion, the bride's home was beautifully decorated with an abundance of cut flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Staats left immediately afterwards on a wedding trip through the New England States, and other points of interest. Upon their return, they will be "at home" to friends at 125 East street, this city.

The bride is a graduate of Clintonville High School in 1934, and she graduated from the Jamieson Memorial Hospital of Nursing in 1937, where she has been affiliated since that time. Mr. Staats, a graduate of the local High School, is employed with the New Castle Nollon Company as a salesman.

FEDERATION BOARD AT McCULLOCH HOME

"Castle Hills Manor," the new residence of Mrs. H. R. McCulloch, president of the Lawrence County Federation, was the mecca for Executive Board members of the organization when they assembled on Friday afternoon for an informal business and social session combined.

Final plans were rounded out for the County Federation meeting to be held Tuesday, April 19, in Ellwood City, which created much interest. During the business procedure, splendid reports from the various chairmen were contributed.

A good attendance marked the occasion and as a special guest, Mrs. McCulloch had Mrs. W. J. Caldwell, director of the Federation Chorus. A social period ensued, completing the afternoon festivities, when tea and dainty refreshments were served. The season's Jones being used throughout. Aides were Mrs. Paul Fischer and Mrs. Clarence Fischer.

Weir, County Line street, which took place Friday at 12:45 o'clock at the bride's home. Rev. Archer, assisted by the bride's brother-in-law, Rev. Ray Perry, of Pittsburgh, officiated.

Miss Ruth Weir, sister of the groom, sang "O Promise Me," accompanied by another sister, Miss Peggy Weir.

The bride was attired in a navy dress suit with dusty rose accessories. She wore a shoulder corsage of white roses. Mrs. Olive Diddell of Pittsburgh, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, wore a rose crepe gown with navy blue accessories. Her corsage was of yellow ten roses.

Ray Snyder, of Apollo, acted as best man.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the bride's home and a buffet luncheon served. Eight persons were seated at the bride's table which was decorated with a large four-tiered wedding cake.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Weir left for a wedding trip to West Virginia. They will be "at home" in about ten days at 361 Wyoming street, Mt. Washington.

EASTER AND HUMANITY

MAN is such an infinitesimal speck in this inconceivably vast universe, say the agnostics and skeptics, that it is incredible that the infinite forces that developed all this immeasurable system of worlds can consider or think of our poor little spirits. We are but specks of dust in infinite space, soon to be swept away, they say.

This point of view looks at things on the basis of quantity rather than quality. A diamond, for instance, is an extremely tiny thing in size, if you should compare it with a square mile of the sand of the Sahara desert. If all the sand on that square mile could be put on scales, it would weigh billions of times as much as that tiny little diamond in the palm of your hand. And yet that diamond is much more valuable in the world's markets, than all that square mile of sand.

So with human life. The power to think, to feel, to love, to create, to organize, existing in a human being, is vastly more significant than a whole dead star with no life on it, even though that star is 1000 times bigger than our earth.

The human beings on this earth, with all their achievements and possibilities, are worth infinitely more than a whole universe of dead stars carrying no life, even though there are billions of them.

This doctrine was an essential part of the message of Jesus. He gave his life for that belief. The Christian world feels that he still lives, and has demonstrated that others shall live also, and that a human soul is worth more than a whole milky way full of stars, if those stars support no conscious life.

BREATHING SPELL FOR FRANCE

In these days of European stress and turmoil it is pleasant to find France achieving at least temporary release from her troubles by setting up a government worthy of the name. Naturally enough, fears are expressed of a new dictatorship in the making. But dictatorship in Europe has operated according to a different pattern. There has first been seizure of power by force and then an irresistible demand that the act be regularized by the people's representatives.

The difference in France is that the Parliament, confronted by desperate economic and financial conditions, has voted powers to Premier Daladier to control revenues and expenditures for a limited period. The reins of government have not been seized by a man on horseback. The authority has been delegated by an almost unanimous vote.

Passionate partisanship, reckless of the cost to the nation, has received a signal setback in France. The results may have a stabilizing influence extending beyond her borders. A united France is a warning to jealous neighbors. It is quite conceivable that in this entirely domestic enterprise an indirect but no less substantial contribution has been made to the cause of European peace.

NO FREAKISH LIVES

Another year of thanks is due Dr. Allan Roy Dafee, the world's most famous country doctor, for his display of wisdom in acting as principal guardian of the Dionne quintuplets. After having refused steadfastly on previous occasions to allow the five girls to take part in ballyhoo exhibitions, Dr. Dafee now announces that he and the other guardians have rejected an unofficial suggestion that the quintuplets appear at the New York World's Fair of 1939.

Dr. Dafee's position is hardly an enviable one. He must and does realize that the fact that the five sisters were born at the same time makes them unusual. Yet they are perfectly normal girls, attractive and clever, and they deserve as nearly normal lives as possible. They are present at their nursery in Corbeil for any visitor to see, but they are not to be paraded around the continent like circus freaks.

Dr. Dafee has planned a considerable part of the quintuplets' lives so that they will not be overly plagued by the curious. The guardians are preparing to provide them with a school of their own when they reach the proper age and are devising other methods of care that will reduce their need for exhibitionism to a minimum. They naturally cannot escape an unusual life, but as long as they are under Dr. Dafee's care, it appears certain that their lives will be as nearly normal as they can be made.

PROBLEM OF PHILIPPINES

It looks as if 1946, now coming at us undaunted, will hardly be a good year to turn the Philippines loose to shift for themselves. The natives, after long clamor for independence and acceptance of the date, have less enthusiasm for it. They are afraid of an economic collapse, or of being clobbered up by Japan, or both.

As for our own people, foster-parents of those Asiatic isles, we had recoiled ourselves to letting them go, partly for reasons of business competition, partly for a practical application of our own democracy, and partly to dodge the task of defending them. Our Asiatic orphan seemed a grown-up child that should shift for itself.

But as the orphan turns and puts a pleading hand again in the firm paw of Uncle Sam, it looks different. It doesn't seem fair to push that trustful ward out into such a world as exists today. Self-government, yes; but the situation may call for a continuance of the bond—for co-operation, support and wise handling of natural resources—for another decade or two, at least.

President Roosevelt's idea is a preferential trade agreement, plus effective co-operation in other lines, until 1960.

What everybody recognizes, but nobody says much about, is the implied protection of the Philippines by the United States navy while the bond lasts. Americans do not want to get into a war over the Philippines; but most of our authorities believe that, with our growing navy, the mere gesture of protection will keep Japan from moving into Manila and mere gesture of protection will keep Japan from moving into Manila and mere gesture of protection will keep Japan from moving into Manila.

An Eastern petitioner for divorce explained that he had put up for years with the wife throwing crockery at him. Not that he minded, personally, but it was hard on the crockery.

Addicts of the new clunk-a-boom, which is considered as the logical successor to the big apple, are warned that they may dislocate a hip, a prospect which makes the dance all the more interesting.

Practically all of our everyday problems have succumbed to science, we are informed by a writer on scientific subjects. There are some, however, that resist the scientific approach, such as paying off the mortgage and keeping crab grass out of the lawn.

HOW TO TOUR COUNTRY

Bill Copp, a fine young high school student of Kalamazoo, Mich., told me the following:

"Summer vacation is coming soon and there won't be any school or studies to worry about. . . . This is what thousands of boys and girls, even men and women, are saying all over the country. But some of them are wondering just what they are going to do with themselves. Camp may cost too much, so may a trip by automobile. And what do you see traveling in a car beside an awful lot of telephone poles, and an occasional lake?"

"Well, the answer as our family has seen it lies in joining the American Youth Hostels. . . . The Youth Hostels were not started in America, but began in Europe. They are very well established over there, especially in Switzerland, Germany and Denmark. Many people have donated castles and beautiful estates to be used as hostels, while others have donated their barns. Both know they need not worry about the Hostellers hurting their property, because the Hostellers are always trying to improve conditions for the other fellow. They're the greatest group of people in the world. . . ."

"New England has the most established Hostels at the present time. A hostel is like an overnight tavern, but a thousand times better. It is usually in a house away from the main highway, often on a lake. In it are beds and blankets, a kitchen (because a Hosteller usually carries his own meals), and a room for lack and games before you 'hit the hay'. Each Hostel has a House Father and House Mother. I think, when I am at a Hostel, that the people who have been picked or who have wanted to use their grounds for a Hostel, are truly among the finest, and most gracious people I have ever met, or ever hope to meet. And I say this, not only from what I myself think, but from the opinion of every single Hosteller I have ever had the honor to come upon."

Hostellers Welcomed

"I am sure that if you, who are reading this opinion of mine on Hostelling, could hear from a Hosteller's own lips that the doors of thousands of Hostellers, all over the world, are open for you to come in and enjoy a long and happy day of either bicycling or hiking, that you would be glad to send in your membership to the headquarters in Northfield, Mass., and not your passport is only $2 if you are under 21 and $3 if you are over 21. It's a grand feeling to go around the country, 'under your own steam', and to know that just a little way over the next hill, or on the shore of your lake, is a Hostel where you can eat, sleep and be happy. I am only a Hosteller, but I feel like a king!"

Let no one who does not have self-reliance and good stuff of character ever try to be a Hosteller, else he will soon lose out.

CUT THE PAGES!

Three books stood straight, side by side, on a public library shelf. Three dusty books I had read years before in another library. I took the first of the three down and blew the dust away and opened the book. I remembered what was in those books, remembered the deep enjoyment I had from reading them, in other copies, and I wanted to relive some of that pleasure by browsing through, turning the pages over and over, hunting for the purple passages I remembered.

But I found, as I turned the pages, that they had never been cut. Nobody had ever read that book. It was made, it was sold to the library, it was catalogued, and placed upon the shelves. . . . But the librarian had forgotten to cut the pages, and nobody had read those books. They were the record of a man's reflections, of his thoughts during a long and fruitful lifetime. No love stories, no jazz, no scandal, no trivialities. But magnificent, life-opening stuff—and no patron of that library knew what was in those books.

Well, books aren't the only things that lie on shelves and gather dust. Other things are neglected, too. (Continued On Page Five)

HINTS AND DINTS

Sun sets tonight 6:38. Sun rises tomorrow 5:22.

A good thing can be spoiled by being poorly planned and poorly managed. We get our best ideas about that from Washington.

In London it is declared that unhappy or broken homes are the greatest factors in the cause of crime. We have known that for a long time in this country.

NEW YORK SEEKS ATTRACTIVE COFS

Wanted by New York police: Women with brains, and curves, instead of brawn.

The call went out for a staff of feminine Sherlocks to undertake undercover assignments too delicate for the muscular "police ladies" now on the force.

Police officials said the new appointments would be used in cases requiring specialized knowledge, charm or investigative ability.

We wonder how many people know what "pump priming" is. We know what it used to be in the country, but it was different than the kind they are talking about in Washington.

A dog investigator went into a small city and found many dogs without license tags. When he went to the owners about it he found they were wearing the tags for "watch charms." Bow Wow!

"Mary," said the mistress, "the window of your room is so dirty that one cannot see out of it." "Yes, Ma'am," replied the maid, "but I always open the window when I want to see out."

Very often when women meet a friend they say, "Oh, how fat you are getting." We know one gal who answered them with "How skinny you are and how old you look." The conversation usually ends right there.

The fight industry always has drawn its major support from those with robust appetites, and it was no more coincidence that saw the old saloon become headquarters for ring strategists and managers.

Even in their new trade ventures the one-time pugilists have retained character. Mr. Tunney, "Gentleman Gene" to the sports ring, has assumed a position as a director of a corporation engaged in producing and distributing a reputable brand of liquid merchandise. The World At A Glance

Daladier Is Held Strong Man.
Feared By Germany And Others.
Built Up Most Efficient Army.

By LESLIE RICHIE,

Central Press Columnist

THERE IS LITTLE QUESTION in France that Edouard Daladier is a strong man. The premier who has received a grant of dictatorial power till July 31 from the chamber of deputies is a man who attracts power unto himself.

He is the most feared of all the French by the Germans—for he has a genius for military organization. And he retains the post of minister of war as well as the premiership. Under him the French army has become the best organized of any in all Europe. That may help to keep the peace.

"STRIVEN UNCEASINGLY"

An excellent description of Daladier appears in The Living Age for April, translated from the Weltwoche (World Week), independent weekly in Zurich, Switzerland. Here are some pertinent excerpts from the article, by Arved Arenstam:

"Edouard Daladier represents the genuine French character. Whether he is actually as impetuous as he seems to be, or whether a certain weakness is hidden behind his harsh almost brutal mask remains to be seen. But just now France inclines to the strong man interpretation."

"Daladier has been able to keep the army, the sacred defender of the nation, out of the recent heated political struggles. . . ."

"Daladier represents the 'national' idea. An ardent patriot, he wishes France to be strong. He is a realist who does not believe in the effectiveness of treaties, even when he himself has concluded them."

"He springs from the people. His father was a baker in the Vaucluse region, a wild, mountainous land, where the people lack the amiable attitude of other French regions; rather, they are like their region itself—rough, even somewhat wild. These men, of whom there are not a great many in France, can also be."

UNPRETENTIOUS The article continues: "Daladier himself hates snobs, inherited wealth, the glamour and idleness of society, the sensitive weakness among his officers. He does not wish to appear distinguished, he remains what he is—a son of the people."

"One rarely encounters Daladier at fashionable Paris receptions. Nobody knew his wife, the daughter of (continued On Page Five)

The Great Game Of Politics

By FRANK R. KENT

(Copyright, 1938)

It's Mr. Lewis's League

Washington, April 16.

IT IS NOT surprising that the unabated ferocity with which the feud between the labor factions continues should attract the attention of the Congress who like to stand well with organized labor and are now painfully embarrassed as to which side it pays politically to take.

FOR example, on the new Wage and Hour bill, drafted in the House Labor Committee and soon to emerge in the floor, they find complete disagreement. The A. F. of L. asserts that the new proposals are even more offensive than the original administration measure, which failed last December, while the C. I. O. declares the new draft contains "all the essentials of effective regulation and should be enacted at once." How, under such circumstances and in an election year, are the unfortunate Congressmen, who by defaulting on any personal conviction in this matter and casting nothing except their return to Congress, going to know what to do?

THEIR suffering is rendered more acute by other complications. One of these is the fact that while the C. I. O. is supporting the Administration position in this wage-and-hour matter, it is perfectly well known that the dominant and controlling leaders of the C. I. O.—Mr. John L. Lewis—is not personally as strong a friend of the President now as is Mr. William Green, of the A. F. of L., whose organization has arrayed itself against the President's bill. Then there is the further confusing fact that Mr. David Dubinsky, head of the great garment workers' union and more of a White House favorite today than either Mr. Lewis or Mr. Green, declares in favor of Mr. Lewis in his effort to break completely with the A. F. of L. and blames him for the failure of peace negotiations. Add all this up and the pain of the trimming Congressman, anxious only not to lose votes can be well understood.

THE fact is the complications of the labor feud and the White House relations of the various labor leaders border on the absurd. The arrangements are not merely on internal labor issues but on external legislation. With the business slump and increased unemployment affecting membership and revenue, one would think they literally would be forced to seek their difference and join hands. Instead the enmity seems to have been enhanced by the depression and the breach is as wide as ever. Treachery, the respect for labor leadership has been lessened, and if and when they do come together—as some day they must—it is not likely organized labor will be able to inspire the same kind of political fear it once did. And that will be good, because next to the old Anti-Saloon League, and the veteran associations, nothing has produced more political hypocrisy than the labor lobby.

ONE beneficial result of the present split should not pass unnoticed—and that is the pulling of the false whiskers off the so-called "Labor's Non-partisan League," which stands out nakedly now as the C. I. O. Charley McCarthy. This organization has never been much more than a shell. It was the front behind which Mr. Lewis played his political hand in 1936, and from it has come many a trick and guile that from any other agency of substance in the American scene. Mr. Green recently declared it as a sham, with a paper membership, whose only function is to serve as a mouthpiece for Mr. Lewis. To say things for him he does not want to say himself.

WHILE undoubtedly there is a basis for Mr. Green's denunciation and the C. I. O. ownership is no longer concealed, nevertheless, it cannot be forgotten that in the beginning Mr. Green contributed to the impression of substance by supporting the brilliant Mr. George L. Berry, the great marble-lease Senator, who was then its spokesman and from whom bombastic statements gushed like water from a fountain. Actually, the League has operated on the strength of its name and its publicity. There never was anything else to it. It was neither labor's league nor non-partisan. It should always have been called Lewis's Partisan Agency. That accurately describes it.

Stipulation In Naval Expansion Bill Is Opposed

Navy Officials Oppose Part That Subjects Builders To Minimum Wage And Hours

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Navy department officials today expressed opposition to a stipulation in the naval expansion bill authorizing private builders of warships to the minimum wage and maximum-hour provisions of the Walsh-Healey Act. This feature, which is the subject of the Senate naval affairs committee, is being opposed by the navy officials because it would subject private shipbuilders to the same laws as those who sell to the government.

While the Walsh-Healey Act now applies to navy yards when they buy materials from private contractors, the measure does not affect private shipbuilders having contracts with the navy. It calls for a 40-hour maximum work week and minimum wages determined by Secretary of Labor Perkins.

Though it was believed application of the Walsh-Healey Act would not add greatly to the cost of warships, bought from private shipbuilders, navy officials in the navy department are concerned that it may result from functioning of the labor department in national defense field.

Chairman Walsh (D) of Massachusetts of the senate naval affairs committee, explained that all companies selling materials to the government, save warships, are now covered by the Walsh-Healey Act.

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, April 16.—Clarence M. Woolley, chairman of American Radiator & Standard Sanitary Corporation told stockholders at the annual meeting business in the first two months of the year was more than 26 per cent under the comparable period of 1937. He said there had been a turn for the better in the building industry recently.

Operations of the company in the first two months, Woolley said, have not resulted in a profit and "it is unlikely this condition will be remedied in the next few months."

Woolley added, however, that the Standard Sanitary division had made money during the first two months.

Senate Unemployment Committee Takes Up Matter Of Legislation To Stop Waste

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, April 16.—Legislation to eliminate waste and increase efficiency in government relief administration is being considered by the senate unemployment committee, it was learned today.

Based on weeks of study of the federal relief setup, it is highly probable the legislation will be placed before the senate and house to bulwark the $1,250,000,000 appropriation for WPA, a part of President Roosevelt's program to crack the business depression.

Chairman Byrnes (D) South Carolina, said the committee will meet next week to draw up its report to the senate, and draft a bill carrying out recommendations for smoother relief operation.

Room For Efficiency
Testimony before the committee showed that federal state and municipal relief officials were of the opinion there is much room for greater efficiency in relief administration. Complaints were heard that relief funds were being administered to persons not in need, and that needy persons were unable to obtain relief funds.

A survey of the committee showed a strong sentiment for more accurate day-by-day accounting of the number of unemployed, the reason they are unemployed, and a geographical chart of unemployment.

Moravian Sunrise Service Attracts Several Hundred
Ancient And Colorful Easter Morning Service Is Scheduled For North Carolina

(International News Service)
WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., April 16.—Thousands gathered here from all points of the compass today to attend the ancient and colorful Moravian sunrise Easter service at 5 a. m. tomorrow.

Throughout the week the Moravians have been preparing themselves with invocations for the quaint and simple religious service—a service that has been held each year since 1773.

Just as dawn breaks, Bishop J. Kenneth Pfohl will emerge from the 126-year-old Home Moravian church and lead the thousands of worshippers gathered in historic Salem Square.

"The Lord has risen!" And from the throats of 30,000 to 40,000 worshippers will come the response: "He has risen indeed!"

Then the bishop, heading the procession for the eighth consecutive year, will lead the worshippers and the 400-piece Moravian band to the 126-year-old Home Moravian church where the simple worship of the Moravians will be read by Bishop Pfohl.

The World At A Glance
a country doctor, who died two years ago, leaving him two sons. His manners are simple and natural. He is unfamiliar with the subtleties of the diplomatic language, which he detests.

"Before this man of the people both the marshals and all the generals of France stand at attention today. Daladier does not regard himself as an intruder into this circle. He served in the trenches with distinction for four years. He started at the bottom, became a sergeant, rose to the rank of captain. He is a soldier."

HIS POLITICAL SCHOOLING
Then, this is interesting: "Daladier's efforts to get a good education led rather directly to his entrance into politics."

"At the Lycée in Lyons he met the man who later became his political mentor, Herriot, director of the school. Interested himself in the young student, took him under his wing and paved the way for his future. Daladier's political concept—the revolutionary doctrine of 1789—springs from Herriot. It is a blend of nationalism and democracy."

"After the war, in the so-called khaki elections of 1919, he was elected for the first time to the chamber of deputies. He did not distinguish himself at once in the deputies. Herriot still overshadowed the entire Radical Socialist group equivalent to our Democrats. Nobody could rise to the top unless Herriot desired it. Did the young Daladier wish to free himself from Herriot's grip? Does the present feud between the two men spring from that early urge of the younger man for independence?"

"Daladier, stubborn and hot-headed, did free himself from Herriot. He is more a man of deeds and less of a talker than Herriot. He is strong-willed and not sentimental. Above all, he is younger. One day, when Herriot made good his threat to lay down the leadership of the party, 'Dala', as his friends call him, became his successor."

THIRD TIME
This is Daladier's third premiership. "During his second period in office, the bloody revolt of Feb. 6, 1934, occurred. The Stavisky scandal, revealing the existence of corruption in high places, had brought the people's patience to the boiling point. The fascists, realizing the situation, saw their opportunity coming.

"The opponents of the regime utilized the excitement of the masses and took action. The national groups took to the streets. With the slogan, 'Down with the regime!' demonstrators moved to the chamber of deputies.

"The long-expected fascist revolution had broken out. 'It was in this decisive hour that everything depended on the head of the government. What would Daladier do?'

"When demonstrators attempted to cross the Pont de la Concorde to reach the chamber of deputies, they were received with bullets. 'Daladier gave orders to fire. But he would not have been a real Frenchman if he had not been deeply moved by the result of that day—30 dead and hundreds wounded. After it was over his nerves did give way. Although he knew how to act in an emergency, he was too weak to withstand its consequences. He retreated in the background, pursued by the 'd' and contempt of the national elements."

He resigned the following day, Feb. 7, 1934.

"But his career was not ended. He realized that some day he would be regarded as a savior of the republic. Gradually the country calmed down. As a result of the fascist push the Popular Front germinated, grew and became a powerful reality. Daladier swore his fidelity to it at the Bastille. The Popular Front emerged as victor of the elections of 1936. Blum, the hero of the day, called Daladier to his cabinet and entrusted him with control of the army."

And now Daladier has a cabinet of his own, over which he rules with supreme power, and neither Blum nor his followers sit in it.

General Shannon To Come April 26th
Former Lieutenant-Governor And Insurance Head To Be At Banquet In The Cathedral

Two more distinguished guests have accepted the invitation of General Chairman, J. W. Davis to attend the Legion National Commanders banquet in the Cathedral Tuesday night, April 26. It was announced today. Major-General Edward C. Shannon, commanding the National Guard of Pennsylvania and Insurance Commissioner Hunt have both promised to attend and will come to New Castle by plane on the afternoon of the 26th.

Both are ex-service men, both are Legionnaires. General Shannon attended the banquet known as "Two Years Ago" in the Cathedral Tuesday night. Major-General Shannon by his comrades of the 28th Division commanded a brigade of infantry during the World War. That service was seen in such hot spots as the Argonne Forest, the St. Mihiel Drive and the other place where war was a grim reality. Commissioner Hunt also saw some hot service during the overseas fray.

Chairman Davis has called a meeting of all committees in the Legion Home on Monday night, April 18. All committee members are urged to be present and report the progress of their committees.

FOWLS REQUIRE LESS ARTIFICIAL LIGHT NOW

As the natural daylight increases with the lengthening of the spring days, poultrymen find less need for artificial illumination. This helps to cut costs.

Most poultrymen decrease the amount of artificial light gradually to prevent the possibility of an unnatural molt, especially if the fowls are thin as the result of heavy winter production. Fifteen minutes, once or twice each week, is usually sufficient reduction each time the change is made. Others prefer to reduce the light by a few minutes each day.

The amount of wet mash fed may be decreased as the days lengthen sufficiently for the birds to consume adequate quantities of other feeds during the daylight hours. As birds are creatures of habit, the decrease of wet mash should be gradual, covering several weeks. By that time the amount will be so small that they will no longer miss the routine of the previous months.

LESSON ACCIDENTS IN HOME

Keep traffic lanes and parking areas free from congestion, also applies to the home, say extension home management specialists at the Pennsylvania State college. Good arrangement of furniture in the home not only makes it a comfortable place to work and relax, but also lessens the number of accidents which may occur.

When cleaning house this spring, carry out this slogan. Speaking of housecleaning, tests show that it takes less energy to draw a carpet sweeper slowly over a section of the rug a few times than to draw it rapidly over the same place many times. This is also true of a vacuum cleaner.

WELL-ADJUSTED DRILL GIVES BEST RESULTS

Farmers interested in securing the greatest return from grain, grass seed and fertilizer realize the importance of accurate planting.

The wear which takes place on the working parts of seed and fertilizer drills changes the rate of application for any given setting. The present rate of application can easily be checked before the drill is taken to the field.

Before the drill can be checked it is necessary to determine the number of times the wheel turns in covering one acre. The first step is to measure the effective width of the drill in feet. Then divide 43,560, the number of square feet in an acre, by the drill width. This gives the number of feet the drill must travel in covering one acre. Dividing that figure by the circumference in feet of the drill wheel gives the number of revolutions for one acre. Dividing the number of revolutions per acre by four gives the number of revolutions for one-fourth of an acre.

To check the accuracy of the drill block up one wheel so it can be turned. Tie a piece of cloth to one spoke near the rim. Place a canvas cloth, or paper under the drill to catch the seed or fertilizer discharged. Set the rate of seeding for the usual amount. After filling the drill box, turn the wheel the number of revolutions represented by one-fourth acre at the speed it would ordinarily travel in the field. Weigh or measure the materials discharged by the drills, multiply by four, and then compare with the expected results. Corrections can then be made on the machine by adjusting the feed shafts and gates.

SEVERE RAKING OF LAWNS IS A HARMFUL PRACTICE

Lack of appreciation of good turf as well as improper methods of management account for most of the poor lawns in Lawrence county. The common practice of raking severely in early spring to remove dead grass is wrong. The dead leaves add humus to the soil, protect it from excess evaporation, and tend to keep weed seeds covered so that they do not sprout. Raking prepares a seedbed for the weed seeds, damages the grass and removes the natural protective covering.

Ordinary lawn grasses will form a dense sod if they are fed regularly and are not cut too closely. It is not necessary to reseed a lawn each spring (fall is the proper time for reseeding). For thin spots that must be reseeded, mix a pound of grass seed with a wheelbarrow load of good topsoil. Scatter this one-fourth to one-half inch thick over the spots needing seeding. Roll well. Do not rake or otherwise disturb the soil.

Early fertilization, using a complete mixture as 4-12-4 or 4-16-4, is best. Either may be mixed half and half with tankage or cottonseed meal. Apply 20 to 25 pounds of this mixture per 1000 square feet. Use 50 to 75 pounds of lime per 1000 square feet where needed.

For spring reseeding, the seed mixture should vary with the purpose for which it is to be used. Use not more than 15 per cent redtop. Include Kentucky Bluegrass or Chewings fescue, the latter for shady places. For moist soils use some rough bluegrass (Postrivialis). Grass should be clipped high. Adjust the mower on a floor or walk so that there will be 1 1/2 inches between the cutting edge of the horizontal bedknife and the surface where the mower stands. High clipping is not a spectacular procedure but it is the surest way to produce a turf that is nearly weed-free and which will stand the punishment of children and dogs romping over it. Close-clipping and crabgrass go hand in hand.

GOOD FOOD AND SUNSHINE AID CHILDREN'S GROWTH

Children are like trees and flowers in that they have a seasonal growth. During late spring and early summer children seem to show smaller monthly gains than may be expected in the early fall and winter months, says Miss Mary Vogle, county home economics extension representative.

If a monthly weight chart and a bi-monthly height chart are kept for the child and compared over a period of time, they will show whether a child is making a good yearly gain. When a child shows no gains his food and hygiene habits should be carefully checked. A thorough physical examination may be necessary.

Comparing the child's record with his own record over a period of years is much more desirable than making a comparison with the average height and weight charts which are given.

Physical signs, such as firm muscles, erect posture, freedom from fatigue, resistance to colds and sparkling eyes, are much more accurate indications of good nutrition than is weight that conforms to a standardized table.

Good food, fresh air and sunshine are essentials in helping to achieve the above results, believes Miss Mary Vogle. Now that the spring days are here, the children should make use of sunshine of which they have been deprived during the winter months.

SAFETY BEGINS AT HOME

Every mother with small children can acquire the habit of placing cooking or heating utensils on the stove so that handles are turned away from grasping fingers, claim extension home management specialists from State college.

Matches should be kept away from children. As a measure of safety adults should learn to strike the match in a direction away from the body rather than toward it. This prevents a snapper head from flying against inflammable clothing.

Major Olmes Will Play At Charity Ball
Major Olmes, who will bring his band to play for the Elks 16th annual Easter Charity Ball on Friday, April 22, has a much sought after Brass Section. Happy Pelton, on Stanley stage of late took this Section to New York recently where they made a number of recordings and a movie short. Some of the best bands in the country have tried to buy this section of the Major, but without success. Playing in this section are Hugh Olmes, Phil Olmes and Bill Stump, who play the French horns that have caused such a sensation at Imperial Room at Hotel Webster Hall in Pittsburgh. Major Olmes goes on record by claiming there will be an ever increasing demand for French horn trio in bands throughout the country.

Should the Collectors Find Out From Your Neighbors?

Have you told your creditors why you haven't paid and when you will pay? If not why not?

Be sincere, at least with yourself—wouldn't it be better and a lot more business like, to call or wire to your creditors and tell them what the trouble is?

Wouldn't that be far better than to have collectors find out from your neighbors and friends?

Your creditors have no hard feelings against you, but if you can't pay they are at least entitled to some show of courtesy on your part.

YOU CAN'T DODGE THE ISSUE

The files of the New Castle Credit Exchange tells the true story.

In the old days of vaudeville, a comedy star getting $2,500 a week was considered tops. But today, in radio, $2,500 a week is a mere fraction of what top radio personalities receive. A few of the higher salaried artists are shown above. George Burns and Gracie Allen begin a new show in the autumn for which they will receive a weekly salary of approximately $12,000. While no official salary figures are disclosed, Major Edward Bowes is credited with receiving around $20,000 a program. Eddie Cantor $16,000 a week, Jack Benny $10,000 a week, Fred Waring (until he left the air a year ago) $13,500 weekly and Edgar Bergen (Charlie McCarthy) $2,500 a week, an old contract.

Two friends of Davis came thru with $12,000 more but it was still not enough.

Taft Hurled First Ball In Opening Game

Every President Since 1912 Has Tossed Out First Ball For Washington

ROOSEVELT TO HURL MONDAY

By LEON W. SHLOSS

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Undertaken by such worthy matters as floods, wars, fires, panics, and scandals, the game of baseball on Monday, with the benefit of President Roosevelt's strong right arm, will enter its 100th season.

The early-bedecked steel and cement stadium where the Washington Senators and Philadelphia Athletics will inaugurate the annual pennant races in a far cry from the Cooperstown (N. Y.) row pasture where, in 1838, a lad named Abner Doubleday heeked some of his boy friends into playing a game he had invented. The game was called baseball.

Taft First Hurler

The president of the United States in that year was 63-year-old Martin Van Buren, later called the "chief machine politician." He probably was too busy guiding the nation out of the depression that began in 1835 to even suspect that Doubleday's game would have a more far-reaching effect on the national life than photography, matches and the vulcanizing of rubber, all of which were invented or discovered in 1839.

Morton McCarthy of Norfolk won the annual Mason and Dixon golf meet at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., yesterday by defeating J. B. Ryerson of Cooperstown, N. Y., 11 up and 9 to play.

College baseball results: Michigan 16, Maryland 6; Washington 8, Juniata 1; Delaware 3, Penn. A. C. 1. In golf Vanderbilt beat Michigan 9-1-2 to 8-1-2 and in tennis, Michigan won over Western Maryland, 5 to 4.

Hal Price's Headley's Menow joined the favorites in the Kentucky Derby when he won the trial handicap at Lexington yesterday. With Jockey Charley Kurtsinger up, Menow stepped the three quarters in 1:11 2-5 in beating the small but select field.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt will toss the first ball in the opening game between the Senators and Athletics.

County League Meeting Off

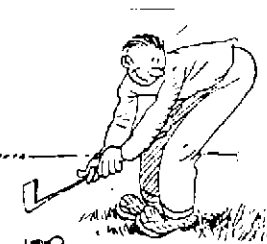

There will not be a meeting of the Lawrence County Baseball League Monday night as originally planned, it was announced by Secretary Connery today.

The next meeting date will be announced later by the president, Alec Samuels, after the various teams have had a chance to have a separate meeting of their own.

Rambling Around World Of Sports

A crack angler this guy Jack Gerson, aside from being an artist in the jewelry business, our friend Jack Gerson takes the top position in our All-American fishing team, disguising himself in a garb of daisies . . . for daisies won't tell . . . we caught the popular local sportsman along Taylor Run yesterday morning . . . with all the traits of the original Izaak Walton. Gerson reeled in one trout after another . . . the sun had risen and so had Gerson . . . it was seven bells and off was Gerson to the city . . . with the limit . . . his catch was a knockout . . . where abouts on Taylor Run? . . . we are still astounded as a daisy and you know, daisies won't tell.

Streams pack 'em in . . . the opening of the trout season was one of the most successful events in some years, locally . . . we toured the countryside and found the streams loaded with anglers . . . it seemed that space was at a premium . . . along the Free Mill road, fishermen gathered in dozens . . . fishing was so hot for the first few hours . . . after that . . . the trout refused to play . . . quite a few local anglers reported getting the limit.

Sportsland in brief . . . In the American league, Cleveland's League Park, is the smallest in the circuit, seating about 23,000 . . . often the Indians use Municipal stadium which seats 80,000 . . . aside from the managers, Al Schacht, top funder of the major leagues, will draw down more money than anyone else actively connected with the game . . . Lou Gehrig makes the top salary at $39,000, but Schacht will collect more than that on his tour as a comedian . . . John McGraw, Wilbert Robinson and Ned Hanlon, three of baseball's greatest managers, are buried in the same cemetery in Baltimore . . . "Doc" Casey, Detroit referee, and former trainer of Jack Dempsey, has been in Max Schmeling's corner in every start made by the Uhlman in this country . . . in 1935, Chuck Klein hampered out home runs in every National league orchard but Forbes Field . . . then, in 1936, he blasted out four circuit clouds in one game.

Freaks on the fairway . . . Bob Sweeney, 1937 British Amateur champ, killed a sea gull with a shot at a short hole . . . the dead bird and ball fell within a foot of the hole . . . Dick Metz played a 69 in an exhibition match at the Arkansas City (Kans.) Country club . . . here's one on Walter Hagen . . . he played the short sixth hole of the Worcester, Mass. Country club in one, with a new ball and a new club on the day before the 1935 National open . . . in the second round of the championship, Hagen three putted the sixth green, his last miss being less than a foot away from the cup.

TALES IN TIDBITS

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, April 16.—Golfers are talking about the way Frankie Strataci, New York boy from the wrong side of the tracks, emphasized the unsportsmanlike of the Walker cup selections by stepping out the other day and beating George Dunlap to win the north and south amateur title at Pinehurst. Strataci was ignored by the U. S. G. A. when that august, if also asinine body, picked the team to meet the British at St. Andrews in June. Yet his record over a year of play makes him one of the standout amateurs in the country, second only to Johnny Goodman.

Strataci was ninth in the national open last summer, one stroke behind Johnny Goodman, who led the amateurs.

Terry Is Himself Again

Being one of those suspicious folk who insists on a peek at a gift horse's teeth, we were very skeptical about those stories from the south early this spring to the effect that Our Will Terry had reformed, and was treating newspaper men now with sweetness and light. It turns out our hunch was not entirely groundless . . . In Houston recently Our Will refused to let his Jints sign the customers' scorecards and chased the local press out of the dugout . . . Since Tom Meany wrote that story in the Salvepost, he is persona non grata with the Jints. Our Will refusing to give him any news breaks . . . Lou Gehrig never has tasted whiskey . . . his favorite exercise is to scatter a pack of playing cards around on the floor and then to pick each one up . . . making a separate and distinct stoop for each card . . . General Manager Johnny Ogden of the Baltimore Orioles has stirred up a lot of criticism by signing Rogers Hornsby as coach and pinch-hitter . . . especially from friends of Bucky Crouse, manager of the Orioles, who fear because of the Ralph's reputation, that he will undermine Bucky as boss.

Well, Then, Who?

Among the events most likely not to occur this season is a Judge Landis day at Sportsman's park, the Cardinals' home field . . . It's our guess that one man all by himself made the American league the great organization it is . . . who? . . . Ben Johnson? . . . Nope . . . Will Harbridge? . . . Nope . . . Connie Mack? . . . Nope . . . Ty Cobb? . . . Nope . . . Babe Ruth? . . . Yep . . . But why? . . . Well, he changed the American league into a power-hitting circuit . . . while the National went along trying to succeed with old-fashioned baseball . . . Am I right? . . . Just a trifle qualat?

CHICAGO, April 15.—Out of town teams prepared to make a final bid for honors today as the American Bowling Congress neared the end of five-man competition. One hundred and sixty contingents were expected to compete during the week end to beat the Monday deadline. Egging them on was the 3,234 leading total set by the Birk brothers contingents of Chicago. On Sunday Jimmy Dykes, manager of the White Sox baseball team, will send his Colonials into action on the allers here, Gabby Hartnett, Cub backstop, is scheduled to explain a local lineup on Sunday or Monday. The Silver Seal Sodas of St. Louis hung up last night's top team score, a 2,910, as eighty teams saw action. Gene Gagliardi of Mount Vernon, N. Hole-In-One Made By Hahn

While it's just a little bit early for this sort of thing, George Hahn made a hole-in-one at the Number 5 hole at the Sylvan Heights course yesterday playing with Emil Grommes and John Ferns.

The course is not officially opened yet, but Hahn should get credit for his feat nevertheless. There was no flag in the cup, which makes the feat all the more amazing. Hahn didn't even know in which direction the hole was located. He used a number six iron to make the shot. He is one of the better than fair golfers being in the low forties consistently. His ambition now is to break 40 one of these days. The Sylvan Heights course does not open until next week officially.

The player likely will be 18 men. No player can be released one month after season opens. There will not be any paid umpires. The managers will select umpires before each game starts.

The following fields will be used: Gaston Park, Dean Park, Rosena Field, B & O, P & O, and Liberty Avenue Field. The games will be played on Tuesday and Thursday.

Trend UpwardSome Stocks Up As Much
As 5 Points In Trading
This MorningBy LESLIE GOULD
International News Service
Financial Writer

NEW YORK, April 15.—The stock market responded bullishly today to President Roosevelt's recovery program. Aggressive buying developed at the opening after yesterday's holiday and the list at its high was up 1 1/2 to 3 points. Trading was active and the trend ran a minute behind at one time.

There was active buying at the opening. Gains ran to 3 points and blocks ran to 1,500 shares in several leaders. Advances were extended later before profit-taking proved heavy enough to check the rise.

Aided gains were in some of the high-priced issues and included 4 points in Case Thrashing at its peak, 4 in Eastman Kodak, over 3 in Allied Chemicals, and more than 3 each in DuPont and Sears Roebuck and over 4 in U. S. Gypsum.

Steels scored gains of 1 to more than 3 despite the poor Republic Steel report and lower production rates in the big Pittsburgh center. Chrysler and General Motors rose easily in the auto section. Coppers and aviation were in active demand as were the electrical equipments.

Rails improved but their gains failed to compare with other sections of the list due to the deadlock in the wage negotiations. Utilities likewise were able to score only modest gains.

Militiamen who had crossed the border were returned to Spain, but sanctuary was given women and children, some of whom are shown, with their few remaining belongings, at the Luchon camp.

WASHINGTON AT A GLANCE

Says Priming Of Pump Won't Work

New Yorker Says Something Hot Is Needed To Unfreeze Things

PUMP MUST HAVE WATER AT BOTTOM

Central Press Washington Bureau
602 Times-Herald Bldg.
By CHARLES F. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The day after the house of representatives virtually chloroformed President Roosevelt's government reorganization plan, the New York stock market reacted quite bullishly. This optimistic tendency has not been well maintained, however.

Even at first there seemed to be no particular reason for a favorable stock market response to the representatives' action on government reorganization. Some sorts of legislation can reasonably be expected to bear a relationship toward stock market prices, but not government reorganization legislation.

The short-lived New York market boomlet apparently was explainable on the ground that speculators saw, in the slapping down of the president on the reorganization issue, some promise of his subsequent slapping down on other issues.

But, at second thought, evidently they were not so sure, and the boomlet petered out pretty completely.

A NEW YORKER'S VIEW

"After all," a market-minded representative from Manhattan remarked to me, "how can the stock market possibly take a cheerful view of the future, with our persistent federal deficits and our expansions and increasing national debt.

"Pump-priming!"

"Did you ever prime a pump?" another representative, from out in the sticks, asked me.

"Probably not," he added. "All you know is how to turn on a faucet."

He did me an injustice. I HAVE primed a pump.

WHAT IT WILL PUMP UP?

"Well, then," continued this legislator, "since you HAVE primed one, you are aware that you've got to have fluid at the bottom of the well or you can prime until you are black in the face and it will do you no good."

"All you will pump up is what you have primed in, maybe excepting a lot of sand and grit that will damage the pump's valves and gadgets, and make it work worse than it ever worked before. These faucet-twisters would do well to learn that before they put the thing hopelessly out of gear."

Our national well is not dry, of course.

But may it not be frozen up down below?

IF "FROZEN"

We talk aplenty about frozen capital.

And about pump-priming.

The two comparisons might advantageously be hooked together, perhaps.

A frozen-up pump cannot successfully be primed with more cold juice. Boiling hot liquid is required. Now, how to hit on something hot?

HULL'S PLAN

Secretary of State Hull has some hot dogs in his program of reciprocal tariff treaties.

His scheme is to create a foreign demand for American products. It involves the admission of certain foreign products into the United States, but if, with our intensive productive methods, we are unable to out-produce the remainder of the world our system certainly has been over-advertised.

The administration indorses the Hull plan but only languidly. It does not, as it should, proclaim it as hot water on the frozen-up bottom of the well.

Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York, proposes a liberal priming of hot water in the form of stimulation of Yankee trade with the Latin Americas through subsidies. It would cost considerably, but it would be hot water down the pump, not more cold water on top of an already frozen pool.

STEWART'S DIAGNOSIS

Priming the pump is rather an old story.

It did not work in President Hoover's day.

It has frazzled out under President Roosevelt.

It is a good story as told by Secretary Hull, but Hull has not had much support. Maybe La Guardia could put some "pep" into it.

La Guardia's plan is Hull's accentuated. The water's hotter.

Urge Support Of Universal Service Bill In Congress

American Legion And Auxiliary Backing Great Plan For Peace

Support of the public is being urged by the American Legion and its Auxiliary for the Sheppard-May Bill on Universal Service, which they assert is the greatest plan for peace that has yet been advocated in this country.

This important piece of legislation would serve two purposes, the members of these organizations assert. First, it would provide instantaneous mobilization of industry, capital, resources, and man-power with equal service for all and special profits for none. Second, it would be a powerful deterrent to war by keeping the nation prepared.

Although the bill would take the profits out of war, it would not suspend the normal profit system. It would become operative only upon declaration of war and would cease to operate when peace was restored.

The American Legion and its Auxiliary is urging every citizen to contact his Senator and Congressmen asking him to support this bill.

(Special Washington Correspondent, New Castle News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 16.—In the current issue of its monthly magazine, the American Association of State Highway Officials outlines $70,000,000 worth of road and bridge improvements "needed" in Pennsylvania. The report deals only with "needed reconstruction on main or principal highways."

Should be rebuilt, 505 miles, to cost $22,000,000; should be widened, 515 miles, to cost $15,000,000; should be relocated, 500 miles, to cost $38,000,000; total, 1,520 miles, to cost $75,000,000.

In addition, the association proposes that 369 bridges be widened or rebuilt in the Keystone State at a cost of $2,000,000.
